

Victory Day is an important national celebration in Russia and a crucial part of Russia's national identity. Victory Day is celebrated on the 9th of May. On this day, many people wear St. George's ribbons. Some of them put the USSR flags on the streets and buildings. Everywhere you can see posters and pictures about Great Patriotic war. Usually on Victory Day, people pick their families and go to the picnic or to the parade in their town. But the main parade takes place in Moscow, where people can see a colossal march of soldiers and military equipment. And in the evening, everyone's attention is focused on the sky, where beautiful fireworks are. The Victory Day is a historical date – on this day in 1945 Nazi Germany officially capitulated. This date is very important for all Russians, due to there is no family in Russia that was not affected by the Second World War. More than 70 years ago the USSR people defended their independence at the cost of many lives. Moreover, the defenders made a huge contribution to the victory over fascism all over the world. That is why the Victory Day is a special and important celebration for people of Russia.

Удалено: n important

Примечание [G.V.1]: of the ribbons?

Удалено: of the USSR

Примечание [G.V.2]: Avoid YOU in academic writing

Удалено: on the

Примечание [G.V.3]: Do not start your sentences with BUT - this conjunction connects clauses, but not sentences.

Примечание [G.V.4]: Do not start your sentences with AND - this conjunction connects clauses, and sentences are connected through transitions.

Примечание [G.V.5]: Avoid nominalization

Примечание [G.V.6]: ineffective passive

Удалено: It

Примечание [G.V.7]: Use DUE TO only before nouns

Примечание [G.V.8]: ineffective passive

Удалено: they