

Compare and Contrast Paragraph

Good teachers and ~~the~~ bad teachers are different because they give different amounts of knowledge, provide students with different learning experiences, and form different attitudes to learning. First of all, good and bad teachers give different amounts of knowledge. When someone in class does not understand the topic, ~~the~~ a good teacher stops and explains it again. However, a bad teacher just rushes ~~in according to~~ through the curriculum and does not care if students understand the topic or not. Therefore, good teachers provide students more knowledge than bad ones. The second difference is that bad teachers and good ones give students a different learning experience. For example, a good teacher gives more complicated tasks to successful students to improve their skills, while a bad teacher provides the same exercises to all classes. Moreover, a good teacher, as opposed to a bad one, can create extra hours for those, who want to study the subject deeper. So, students of a good teacher have a better learning experience in comparison ~~with~~ to bad teacher's students. Finally, the greatest difference is that good and bad teachers form different attitudes to learning. On the one hand, a good ~~teacher~~ instructor teaches enthusiastically and can interest students. As a result, more people like such classes and the process of learning. On the other hand, a bad teacher gives information uninterestingly and monotonously, so students do not like his or her classes and education at all. To conclude, good and bad teachers provide ~~a~~ different amount of knowledge, give students different learning experiences, and form different attitudes to learning among people.

Примечание [G.V.1]: You have to rephrase the conclusion

Cause and Effect Paragraph

Globalization is good for society in several important ways. However, due to globalization, people lose their identity, forget the traditions of their countries and the environment ~~is suffering~~suffers from the increased production. The first negative effect of globalization is that people can lose their individuality. For example, nowadays many people try to follow fashion and trends, as well as ~~and~~ to retreat from their principles for the sake of popularity. This phenomenon even got a special name – “Hype”. As a result, because of globalization, people have become more concerned about other people's opinions. The second negative impact is that people forget the customs and traditions of their countries. For instance, young Russians celebrate Halloween more actively than Maslenitsa, despite Maslenitsa is their national holiday, but Halloween is not. Russians do it because Halloween is more popular in the rest of the world, and many countries celebrate ~~it~~this holiday. The final negative effect is that increasing production because of globalization does harm nature. As already mentioned, to follow the fashion people buy more and more new goods. According to statistics, the number of large factories has doubled over the past 5 years due to the growing demand for new products. It damages nature because pollution from factories is one of the most serious ones. All things considered, the globalization has many negative aspects, such as loss of identity and traditions among people, as well as ~~and~~ the growth of environmental pollution.
