

Studying format

Studying online and offline is different because students will have different experience, knowledge they get and amount of free time. First of all, online students and offline students have different experiences. Offline students can attend classes directly, take part in university activities, meet together and so on. But people who study remotely have no such possibilities, because they are too far from their university and each other. Therefore, offline students have less possibility to socialize and participate in different activities. The second difference is the knowledge people gain. Offline students can directly ask questions during and after lectures, and professors don't waste time to organize internet broadcast. In contrast, online students cannot always ask question and have to waste time due to some technical issues. As a result, offline students have more time to understand the material and more ways to communicate with professors, than online ones. Finally, the greatest difference is about free time. On the one hand, offline student must eat quickly, wear decent clothes and go to university for classes. These things take a lot of time every day. On the other hand, people who study online aren't bound to do these things. For example, online students can just wake up and watch the lecture during breakfast. Therefore, online students usually have more free time than offline ones. To conclude, people who study online and who study offline experience their study differently, gain different value of knowledge and have different amounts of free time.
